NORTH CENTRAL COLLEGE ARCHIVES

The North Central College Archives consists of three collections: College Archives, Harris W. Fawell Congressional Papers, and the Suburban Studies Archive. The College Archives documents the history of North College from its organization in 1861 through photographs, publications, and faculty and presidential papers. The Harris W. Fawell congressional Papers reflect the Congressman's service as Representative of the 13th District of Illinois from 1985-1998, specifically as a member of the House Committees on Education and Labor and Science Committee. The Suburban Studies Archive seeks to preserve and make available historical records that relate to the physical, economic, and political transformation of the west suburban region since 1945.
